Forecast for Monday 10 Jun 2024

Weather: Persistent and occasionally heavy rain expected until the dawn period is likely to lead to fuller watercourses than of late. Becoming increasingly fine into daylight hours, with a few further showers developing to mainly affect windward ground in the north. Some of these will be on the sharp side for a time, and perhaps fall as sleet over the highest ground given the unseasonably low temperatures. While cool, often fine during the afternoon, ahead of further showers arriving during the evening.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 30 improving 90 by mid-morning. Showers perhaps grazing the highest ground.

Low Cloud and visibility: Broken cloud around 500 metres soon fragmenting and lifting narrowly clear of the highest ground. Visibility moderate in early rain but soon improving to very good with local deteoriorations in showers.

Meteorologist's View

Unseasonably cool, with the freezing level allowing for some sleet in expected showers. The breeze and low temperatures may mask the strength of sunny spells.

Forecast for Tuesday 11 Jun 2024

Weather: A chilly start will lead into a cool day with a few further showers. These showers will be lighter than on Sunday, with shallower cloud, but this cloud will tend to spread by day to give more limited sunny spells.

Maximum wind: Northwesterly 30mph easing.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 40 improving 70.

Low Cloud and visibility: Broken cloud around 600 metres lifting to near the higher summits later. Very good visibility, although again some local drops due to showers.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 2 becoming 14 degrees Celsius.
At 800m: Plus 2 degrees Celsius.
Freezing level: Narrowly above the highest ground.
